Hello!

Thank you very much to all the sponsors, exhibitors and attendees that participated in 2018 World of Modular, held in Hollywood, Florida. The show was a great success with nearly 900 attendees from 26 countries making it the largest crowd ever for a modular construction event.

As we continue to make progress on our 5-in-5 initiative for the industry, we know that we have many challenges and opportunities ahead. Our international research revealed that while other countries have many differences than the North American market, there are also many similarities and lessons to be learned. MBI will continue to share those best practices and facilitate business opportunities for our member companies.

As the new president for 2018-2019, I very much look forward to continuing our industry growth campaign, while working with code officials, architects, and others to help make modular construction more mainstream. Your continued support of these efforts will benefit all member companies regardless of segments served.

The latest issue of the Modular Advantage is our directory issue, featuring contact information for all our suppliers, manufacturers, contractors, owners, and fleet owners. As always, if you have any questions, concerns, or ideas, please reach out to the MBI staff to share.

Thank you for your continued support of the MBI.

INTRODUCTION TO COMMERCIAL MODULAR CONSTRUCTION

NOW AN ONLINE COURSE!

Introduction to Commercial Modular Construction

The Modular Building Institute (MBI) worked closely with Clemson University to develop the book “Introduction to Commercial Modular Construction.” After the world-wide acceptance of this book as one of the go-to guides for understanding the modular industry, we have worked together to create a self-paced professional online course worth 1.5 CEUs. The course explores the process of commercial modular construction from the discussion of client needs, through design and fabrication, to transportation and installation of modules.

FIRE PROTECTION THAT ALSO GUARDS THE BOTTOM LINE

By Frank Pospisil, Technical Sales Manager, USG Structural Solutions

Ever increasing offsite manufacturing and the prefabrication of building components is changing the construction industry. Now the focus must turn to making modular manufacturing itself faster and more efficient. With this in mind, USG has developed the only 2-hour UL-certified fire design for use in permanent modular construction. UL H501™ enables modular builders to achieve a 2-hour fire rating in a design that requires significantly less time, space, resources and money.

REDUCING MATERIAL COSTS WHILE INCREASING EFFICIENCY

The H501™ design is not just innovative; it’s also simple. Where traditional assemblies require two to three layers of drywall as the ceiling, this new design incorporates a 3/4” thick USG Structural Panel on top as the subfloor and only a single layer of USG Sheetrock® Brand Firecode® C Gypsum Panel on the bottom of the ceiling joists.

Additionally, manufacturers don’t need to wrap the marriage line beam in insulation—meaning no intumescent paints, sprays or coatings or individual member drywall wrapping. Plus, there are three different means of holding the fire and sound insulation under the subfloor, thereby allowing greater flexibility when adding plumbing services and electrical wiring. All of this reduces labor and material costs while speeding up production.

Using an H501™ fire design for modular construction reduces labor and material costs while speeding up production.

INTEGRATING STRUCTURAL ELEMENTS MEANS WIDE-OPEN SPACES

With H501™ design, beams are part of the assembly. This means walls are not required under the beams and adjacent modules can be ganged together without walls between them. This facilitates the creation of open spaces, such as large common areas, meeting rooms, lobbies and dining areas. This greatly increases design flexibility and increases the types of projects in which modular construction can be used.

THE SKY IS THE LIMIT WHEN IT COMES TO FLOOR COVERINGS

In contrast to other designs, which require underlayment or multiple layers of plywood, the H501™ design passed the 2-hour fire test without an insulated floor covering. With no mandatory underlayment, designers now have full flexibility in the selection of floor coverings without affecting the floor/ceiling rating in any way.

Taken together, it’s easy to see how innovative designs like H501™ are helping modular builders further revolutionize our industry.

REVOLUTIONIZING THE PREFABRICATION INDUSTRY

Let’s face it, job sites are facing a growing number of logistical obstacles and challenges. Owners want to occupy their buildings faster than ever, causing pressure on the construction cycle. And the weather never seems to cooperate causing delays in the project schedule. So how are smart builders staying ahead of the challenges AND competition? They prefabricate large portions of the building offsite under controlled conditions. It’s faster, easier and safer than what can be built on the jobsite.

Builders need better materials

Prefabrication is growing at a rapid pace as more contractors recognize that upstream planning can mitigate downstream time and cost concerns. But contractors can’t do it alone. They’re looking to manufacturers for solutions that support their process goals of efficiency and quality control construction.

USG and Tremco Commercial Sealants & Waterproofing have joined forces to deliver an innovative product to help prefabricators expedite the construction process even further.

Introducing the Securock® ExoAir® 430 System

The Securock® ExoAir® 430 System is the only glass-mat sheathing panel, pre-coated with a fluid-applied air barrier membrane. The membrane is fully cured, allowing the system to be quickly installed and detailed in a controlled prefabrication environment, giving your projects significant advantages.

- Improve Efficiency: The System expedites construction timelines through eases of installation and less trades on site
- Increase Quality Control: A factory-applied membrane means precise thickness and consistency
- Avoid Weather Delays: The fully cured membrane allows jobs to move forward without concerns of washout
- Accelerate Interior Work: Faster building enclosures allows interior trades to begin interior work at the same time

Consider the Securock® ExoAir® 430 System

A complete System designed to further escalate your next prefabrication project
